Solar Radiation Data Solar Data Warehouse

The National Solar Radiation Database provides free access to gridded satellite observations for 2000-2005 and recent SUNY satellite data is available from several commercial suppliers. NASA also provides free access to their satellite-based observations on their POWER (Prediction of World Energy Resource) website .

Analysis of satellite derived beam and global solar

Testing satellite-derived solar radiation data is not straightforward since satellite images over large areas (100 km² in this example once an hour) and ground-based measurements look at only a small portion of the sky and the data are averaged over an hour.
